AN ODD AUCTION

By ANNA WOODBRIDGE.
Copyright, 1914, by American Press Association.

In antebellum days in the south when the owners of the great plantations formed a rural society such as one finds today in the country districts of England, Edmund Dexter, a young graduate of Harvard college, went to Georgia to tutor the children of a planter named Benard. Among Dexter's pupils was Carey Benard, a girl of seventeen. Since Dexter was but twenty-three, the relation of teacher and pupil was hardly a safe one if there were objections to the little god of love coming in to weld their hearts. The said and did not in this case. The girl was more than a match for the young man. As soon as the attachment was discovered Mr. Benard dismissed Dexter. The lovers were in an agony over their separation, but what could they do? Dexter had no money except what he received from the girl's father, and when that was cut off he was obliged to shift for himself.

Dexter took his departure, telling the girl he would come back and should be first her slave he would claim her. But he would not advise her to wait for him, because he was not visionary and saw no probability of his being able to take her from her luxurious home. The girl was more hopeful and declared that if he could not marry the man she loved she would not marry at all.

Ten years passed. Carey Benard had developed into a splendid woman. She had received many offers, but had not married. She never spoke of the young man who had carried away her virgin heart with him. She entered into the amusements in vogue among the planter society in which she lived. Her father did not urge her to marry. Indeed, he dreaded lest she should. The only suitor he favored was a United States senator twenty years her senior who had made himself prominent in the anti-slavery agitation that was then in vogue.

The civil war passed over the land, leaving the south in a broken condition. Mr. Benard, now General Benard, had lost his slaves by emancipation, but, being a man of energy, had done what he could to repair the damage to his plantation and, hiring his old hands, had done his planting and raised his crops. But it was all he could do financially to keep his head above water.

There was a great deal of poverty in the south in those days, and every device was resorted to to keep many who had lived in affluence from starving. A bill was given on the Benard plantation for this purpose, the ladies who managed the household to different methods by which to raise funds for charity. Among these was one which would have been expected to produce excellent results if the young men of the south had not been impoverished by the war. It was this: A man could only gain the privilege of dining with any lady he desired for a partner by bidding for it.

Senator — after the failure of the cause he had advocated, continued a suitor for Carey Benard's hand. More shrewd than most of his compatriots at the beginning of the war, he had sold his slaves and put the money in blockade runners. Nearly all his ships had passed in and out without capture, and indeed of being lost. He had most of his neighbors, he was wealthy. There were no invitations to General Benard's ball, all being free to attend. It had been arranged that bids should be received for the privilege of attending the ball with Miss Carey Benard. The men surrounded an improvised auctioneer's stand, and offers were called for. Senator — started the bidding by an offer of $500. No other bid was expected, and the matter was considered closed when a man in the throng cried, "One thousand!"

The senator started. Those looking on were surprised. Who among the men of that region could offer so much? Senator — missed his bid by $1,500. He had scarcely spoken the words when his antagonist, who seemed to be a stranger, for no one knew him, said quietly, "Five thousand."

Sensor — felt it essential as a suitor for Miss Benard's hand that he should win if it took half his fortune. The amounts were raised a thousand every bid until $10,000 was reached, when the stranger bid $100,000.
The senator retired from the contest on the ground that his opponent might not be possessed of as many cents as he had bid dollars, whereupon the stranger displayed certified checks to the amount of half a million.
The name signed to the checks was Edward Dexter.
Dexter was recognized by Carey Benard the moment she saw him. They opened the ball together, and later he made a formal application of her father for her hand. Dexter gave up explanation of his affairs as follows:
The owners of a newly discovered mine in the west had offered it to eastern capitalists. Dexter, being a practical chemist, had been sent to examine the property, and on his return a company was formed for its development. Dexter acquiring a portion of the shares. The mine turned out to be a bonanza and made every one connected with it rich.
It is needless to say that Dexter's proposition was accepted by General Benard and a loan for restocking the plantation as well.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O.

HUNG JURY FLANARY CASE

EIGHT FOR CONVICTION; FOUR FOR ACQUITTAL.

Mrs. Flanary Expresses Relief That the Trial Is Over—Will Set Case For Trial Early in Term.

Dallas, Tex., Nov. 23.—Unable to agree on a verdict after deliberating for ninety-six hours, the jury in the case of the state vs. Mrs. Fannie L. Flanary, murder, was finally discharged at 12:10 o'clock today. W. Foyner, foreman, confirmed the report that eight jurors stood for conviction and it remained the same until yesterday, when three of the four for acquittal talked of a compromise. This being conducive of no result, the three returned to their former decision and held out for an acquittal to the end.

The fact that six of the twelve stood for the death penalty evidenced that the charge of murder in the second degree was not taken into consideration. H. S. Richardson, one of the jurors who stood for acquittal, declared today that he did so because he was convinced that Mrs. Flanary was insane at the time she shot and killed her husband. His position was this: If she was insane then she should be acquitted; if she was not insane, then she was guilty of murder in the first degree. "You see there was no chance for a compromise," said Mr. Richardson.

On every ballot taken since the jury retired to deliberate last Saturday, eight ballots were cast for conviction and four for acquittal. H. L. Bonham, who held out for the death penalty, was ill for a time from heart trouble. He remained in bed the entire day yesterday, and did not eat anything for two days. His illness and the illness of three other jurors convinced the court yesterday that should no verdict be arrived at today, a discharge would be in order.

The jury stood as follows: For death penalty—H. L. Bonham, J. A. Newell, J. J. Stratton, W. F. Foyner, L. A. Logan and H. S. Richardson. For life imprisonment—R. A. Spence and T. M. Lawson. For acquittal—H. S. Richardson, J. W. Gault, J. W. Mitchell and A. High.

DR. H. H. CRIPPEN HANGED

DOCTOR CALMLY MARCHES TO THE SCAFFOLD.

Burial Chant Recited as Party Approaches Place of Execution in London.

London, Nov. 23.—Dr. H. H. Crippen was called at an early hour. He dressed himself carefully in his own clothes and announced himself ready some time before the time fixed for his execution for the murder of his wife, Belle Elmore Crippen.

The last few minutes of the condemned man's life were spent in the company of Father Carey, from whom he received the last rites of the Roman Catholic Church.

As the priest concluded his task, Executioner Kilts accompanied by his official assistants and the warders entered the cell. They carefully pinned Crippen's arms to his sides and then the provincial set out for the scaffold which was but a few yards away.

The priest walked at the side of the condemned man, solemnly chanting the burial service.

Within a few minutes the sentence of the court had been carried out. Crippen met his fate bravely, walking firmly to the scaffold, and was hanged at 9:02 o'clock this morning without making any confession or statement whatever.

Some time after the crowd had dispersed, a notice was posted on the prison gates announcing that "The judgment of death has this day been executed on H. H. Crippen," in the presence of the governor of the prison, the under-sheriff and Father Carey. The physician's certificate of death was also displayed.

May We Give You $100?

IF THIS OFFER WAS PRINTED ON A ONE HUNDRED DOLLAR BILL, IT COULD NOT POSSIBLY BE WORTH ANY MORE TO YOU. THE ONLY REAL DIFFERENCE IS: INSTEAD OF TENDERING YOU THE REAL CASH, WE WANT TO TELL YOU HOW TO MAKE THE ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS IN A MIGHTY SHORT TIME, WHICH IN EFFECT IS JUST THE SAME AS IF WE HAD GIVEN YOU THE ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS.

There is no question but that you can make the money, it is here to be made by someone, therefore why not by YOU. We have the best proposition before you now that anybody ever had or ever will have in this city, that is in the shape of lots for a home or for investment. HAVE YOU SEEN EHEM? Everybody that has seen them agree that it is the most desirable location of any—anywhere—the lowest part of the Mineral Heights addition overlooks the whole city of Greenville. Just think of that! There could not possibly be a more beautiful and more beautiful location in or around Greenville. And one thing more, Greenville must grow south, for it can not grow anywhere else.

Now then, if Greenville continues its growth for the next five years as it has in the past, what will those lots that we are now selling for from $75.00 to $175.00 be worth then? We say, and most people think we are very conservative about it, that they will be worth anywhere from $250.00 to $500.00 a lot. Ask anybody that knows anything about property values in and around Greenville and they will tell you the same thing. WHY DON'T YOU START TO MAKE THAT $100.00 OR MORE THEN TODAY, right now, while you still have a chance to do it, for remember, they will not last always, for nearly everybody in this city is wanting to own some lots out there to build them a home on some day and we have not enough lots out there to go around.

PHONE NOW WHILE YOU THINK OF IT TO MR. NASH AT THE GREENVILLE REALTY COMPANY, AND HE WILL GLADLY TAKE YOU OUT TO MINERAL HEIGHTS AND SHOW YOU HOW AND WHERE YOU CAN MAKE THAT $100.00 ON EASY TERMS.
